MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY OF THE DAY.

To Sheep-farmers and the Public in general.

F. C. Calvert's Phenyline & Terebinene Sheep Salve

The great reputation these specifics have enjoyed in England on account of their extraordinary success in all cases where they have been applied, has induced the proprietor to introduce them in this market on account of the immense sheep farming interest of the country. To enable sheep-owners to obviate in future the occurrence losses they sustain yearly, not only in the deterioration of the Sheep, but also, as frequently happens, the loss of the animal itself. It is a powerful antiseptic, and the only safe & fair trial, for the destruction of the result. The following is a list of some of the uses to which these salves require to be applied:—

In Sheep—To cure maggots, tarrot, scab, lice, tick.

In Horses—Unkor in the feet, grease, quitter, all cangreuous wounds or ulcers, cracked heels, mange, &c.

Cows; Disemper, an full diseases of the boule.

For wounds or bruises resulting from accident and for all general veterinary purposes these remedies are sure. Hence line is found to be remarkably successful in the Hospitals of England for cutting Cancer. Terebene is also used for preserving hides, skins and bones from all vermin and insects, the parasites usually cured with it in this city and Australia. have received the approval of purchasers in England who report them to be perfectly sound and sweet. The leather made from the hides is also declared to be superior in every way.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1863.

THE BRITISH LIBRARY.

British residents have three common national institutions in B. Ayres, the Library, the English paper, and the Hospital, all equally ancient, and perhaps equally useful. Englishmen are remarkable for public spirit, yet, the truth be told, these several institutions have languished for a long period, without vigor, elasticity, or hope. Meantime Irishmen have got up a Convent and College, both of which are in a most flourishing condition, without subsidy from either the English or Argentine Government; and their aid has helped to raise the English paper to an eminence and popularity never dreamed of by any foreign predecessor.

It is not likely that the Hospital will ever be as great a favorite as the Library, or newspaper, since its services are precisely for those who do not support it, and public charity is rather damped than encouraged by the association of Parliamentary patronage, although it would be a fatal error to neglect its maintenance; the lives it annually saves being worth a hundred times its yearly cost.

Comparisons are invidious, and it is with reluctance that we repeat the truthful expression pronounced at the late Library meeting. The British Library has even higher claims than the Hospital on all classes of residents. It is, indeed, or should be, the nucleus of our English society, and there is no reason why it should be postponed to the Hospital, or viewed with jealousy by those special defenders of the poor and sick of our community. Why was not Consul Parish in the chair on Thursday evening? Why did not the British Minister lend the dignity of his official presence? Why were not the Rev. Messrs. Forde and Goodfellow there, to prove their earnestness in good wishes for the institute? Why did only 18, of 160 members, assist at the general meeting? In fine, why has not the Library 600 subscribers?

The Rev. Mr. Smith started an excellent idea, touching the association of evening classes and periodical lectures, with the Library, which would render it at once more attractive and instructive. Several young men expend a portion of their salary in the study of Spanish or French, which with a little effort and co-operation might be provided them gratis at the Library, for which purpose we would, ourself, volunteer two hours each week.

Again, a monthly lecture would be very entertaining, if the musical members would relieve the monotony of prose by some inspiring English, Irish or Scotch ballads. We may not have a fund of literary genius, but we could at least pass a pleasant hour in mutual narratives of personal experience. Thus Mr. Ford having proposed to give us a scientific lecture, Mr. Goodfellow would follow with his literary researches, and if our British Minister and Consul could be induced to descend from the frigid atmosphere of diplomatic ton to the more congenial realms of friendly intercourse, the former would narrate to us the wonders he had seen in that land of romance, Persia, while the latter would lead us in spirit up the porcelain tower of Nankin, through the bazaars of Canton, or across the Great Wall, in the vicinity of which he passed some of his early years.

This is not jest, but sober earnest, and much as we admire private theatricals and the like, we believe knowledge and amusement might be better advanced at the British Library, if the Committee only took the trouble to stir themselves and their friends, in aid of so meritorious an institution. True to our mission, we have warmly espoused the Library, wishing to place it on a footing suitable to the wants of our fellow residents, and to the dignity of the nation we represent.

MEXICAN SYMPATHY.

There is a kind of peevish susceptibility on the Mexican question which, we remark, has within the last few days greatly increased. To argue with a Porteño upon the merited fate of the Mexicans, and convince them that it is nothing more nor less than Divine retribution, is as futile as to attempt to turn the course of the River Plate.

It is extremely difficult to discover the cause of all this great affection for a country and a people with whom we never had any relations or alliance, and about whose history and character Porteños are confessedly ignorant.

Had Santa Anna, when President of Mexico, afforded protection to banished Porteños during the Rosas epoch. Had he fitted out in Vera Cruz a squadron to overturn the despot. Had any of the rulers of that country ever taken the slightest interest in Argentine matters—we could appreciate the generous motives which gave rise to the present sympathy; but we find the contrary to be the fact; neither has Mexico assisted Porteños in their multitudinous 'struggles,' nor has Buenos Ayres ever in the slightest manner helped to avert the fate for which we are now all in tears. When the Yankees over-ran the place, and took the richest provinces from Mexico, no Argentine was found to appeal to his countrymen in their behalf.

Mr. Bilbao will probably tell us that Rosas was then in power, and Porteños could do nothing. But, may we ask him, if Argentines preserved such a deep interest in Mexican prosperity, why they did not lend some assistance to restore law and order during the perpetual disturbances from 1852 to 1860. Rosas was not then in power.

We confess a dislike to having any European Power intermeddling with American affairs; but when the Americans themselves will not interfere, when for years and years a perpetual system of cut-throat plundering is allowed to go on, were it the Mikado of Japan who interfered, we should thank him, in the name of common humanity, for his intervention. For the last twenty years, no Mexican government was worth an hour's purchase. They have been fighting amongst themselves, like a set of Kilkenny cats, and would still be at it, were it not for the man whom Mr. Bilbao calls the 'Despot in Paris.'

Sympathy for a fallen nation is one of the noblest of sentiments; it springs from that generous feeling which is never found wanting in a free and liberal people. Two-thirds of all who crowded the Cathedral the other day at the funeral ceremony for the fallen Pueblans, we are willing to believe, attended influenced by no other motive; but there were others there, who ought to have known the true merits of the Mexican difficulty, and the questionable propriety of praying in public for the eternal repose of a set of fellows who have ruined their own country and injured their neighbours by their nefarious revolutions. Mariano Saavedra, the Governor of this province, we are told, was there. We wonder whether it ever occurred to his Excellency for whom he was praying. Has Mr. Saavedra forgotten that for the last ten years every respectable Mexican has been expatriated? Does he not know that the beautiful and educated daughters of the leading Mexican families are to be found as housemaids and barmaids in all the fashionable hotels in the States? The men who caused all this affliction and woe, Mr. Saavedra dares to sympathize with, now that Heaven has chastised them. We are not surprised at the disconsolate affliction of A. Alsina, neither are we astonished at the Argentine blarney of A. Bilbao, but we do say that we expected more discretion and less humbug from the man who fills the chair of Governor of Buenos Ayres.

NEW TRACTION ENGINE.

As we lately informed our readers that the National Government had granted a concession to Messrs. Beare and Pueyrredon for the introduction of improved systems of traction engines, we now lay before them a translation of the 18 principal clauses. Our readers will see for themselves that the terms are advantageous to all parties:—

The Senate and Chamber of Deputies, &c. &c.

Art. 1. The National Government is authorised to enter into a contract with Messrs. John Rusignol, Peter Beare and Prilidiano Pueyrredon, and (with) any other contractors, in order to establish throughout the Republic a regular and constant communication by means of steam locomotive, known as 'Endless,' adopting whichever of the systems, as may be found most convenient, on the following terms:—

1. The contractors shall establish a company, with limited liability, having its legal residence in the Republic.

2. The lines of communication shall be from Buenos Ayres to Rosario, Rosario to Cordova, Cordova to Santiago, Santiago to Tucuman, Tucuman to Salta, Cordoba to Catamarca, Cordoba to San Luis, San Luis to San Juan, San Luis to Mendoza, and Concordia to Restauracion. The first line, at the election of the contractors, shall be established within 18 months from signing the contract, and the remainder within three years from the same date. The Government, if sufficient cause be shown, may extend the first term six months, and the second one year.

3. The contractors shall previously perform experimental trips to the satisfaction of the Government.

4. The contractors will establish roads, construct bridges and approaches, strengthening the existing structures as may be found necessary for the convenience and security of transport, and make whatever repairs that shall be essential to keep them in good order.

5. Such roads opened by the contractors shall be free to the public in general.

6. The contractors shall bind themselves to carry gratis the public mails; troops, ammunition, and Government stores generally at one-half the rates charged to private individuals.

7. The capital of the undertaking shall be one million silver dollars.

8. The Government shall guarantee to the undertaking, for a term of forty years a net interest of 7 per cent. per annum.

9. The guarantee for forty years shall date from the establishment of the first line.

17. The guarantee shall be effective only on the lines established and opened to public traffic, and shall reckon in proportion as they may be established, in order to calculate the amount the Government will recognize in the fulfilment of its obligations, the works, materials employed, and the customary legitimate expenses shall only be taken into consideration.

11. The guarantee interest shall take effect in the amount of the whole of the lines, deducting only from such amount the expenses of management, repairs of roads, bridges, and other legitimate expenses.

12. The guarantee shall cease on any line, or lines, when from neglect or omission of the contractors, the communication or public traffic shall be suspended on such established line or lines.

13. At the expiration of the term guaranteed, all bridges and approaches constructed by the contractors shall become property of the nation.

14. All materials, implements, machinery, and establishments of the undertaking necessary for carrying out the enterprise shall be exempt from all taxes and imposts during the term of the guarantee.

15. The Government may discontinue an unproductive line, on payment to the contractors, of the amount of capital invested in stations, bridges, approaches, &c., for such case the guaranteed interest on such amount of capital will cease.

16. The Government shall have the right of intervention, as far as regards the carrying out the various arrangements laid down in these articles, and also in the establishing of rates of fares.

17. In case of any difficulty arising between the Government and the undertaking, such questions shall be settled by arbitrators to be named by both parties.

18. It shall be obligatory on the contractors to establish lines from Cordova to Rioja, and from Salta to Jujuy, and any other that the Government may determine, on the same terms and conditions as already stipulated.

Art. 2. Let it be communicated, &c.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The long-talked of move has at last taken place, and the Minister of War, bag and baggage, has been turned out of his quarters in the Provincial Government House. His new official residence is right in front of the river, in the national head quarters. From the windows of the office there is a delightful view of the river. We hope Messrs. Gelly and Obes will now keep a better look-out after filibuster whale boats and Argentine officers.

Flores has played the old gaucho trick, and cleared out, the moment Medina came up. Foster says, that Berro might as well think of catching Fort-Tero with his hands as of entrapping Flores, unless the 'proper bait' be given.

President Mitre and Dr Costa have succeeded in establishing a new notary public office—as if we had not too many of them already. There being no code of procedure, it is difficult to say what is its exact jurisdiction, but according to rumour, all public claims must go through this office. The average time required for the due investigation of the most insignificant account is five years and a week. This is very inconvenient, as according to the Codigo de Comercio, only four years is allowed for the collection of a debt. All claims against the Government will not only be null and void by operation of law, but the claimants will be liable to a heavy fine for violating the statute. Who the new notary will be we have not heard, but would suggest either of the two disconsolate Mexican widowers, who, in this the hour of their affliction, are to be seen wandering about the killing grounds, near the Convalescencia, like two melancholy Aztecs, weeping tears of the bitterest Pulque for their long-lost Montezuma.

Bilbao's address to the editor of a Chilian paper, on the funeral service in the Cathedral, on Friday, is what the Yankees call 'tall talking.' One would suppose, from the inflated style of the writer, that the 18,000 men in Puebla, instead of laying down their arms, en masse, as they did, before almost a gun was fired, had fought bravely to the last, and fell like true heroes, defending their homes and liberties. Such a high-flown production we never before saw or read of; and we verily believe, that if Mr. Posadas would only stitch it together, and let it off from the top of the Post-office, it would find its way to Chili without the least difficulty: it has more gas in it than the largest balloon ever constructed.

The latest novelty going is the new expropriation law, which has been sent before the chambers. The history of this new law is short and simple. Many people, failing to keep up with the onward march of civilization in this country, imagine they have a right to their own house, quinta, chacra, or estancia, as the case may be, and peremptorily refuse to allow the go-ahead engineers of the Government to make a road through their dining-room, or a small ditch in their sala. These sort of people are extremely inconvenient; the law is therefore brought in to remedy this, as it is probable that it will be supported by all who have nothing to lose by it. We suppose it will be passed. A distinguished engineer is drawing a plan of a street to run at the back of San Martin: half the best houses in town, of course, must be knocked down to make this street, which will be called 'Calle Espropriacion;' but of course that is immaterial, when the onward march of improvement is at stake.

The Revolutionary Committee, in Buenos Ayres hold meetings every night we hear now. Some of the newly elected members have introduced a great reform in the shape of Twyfords Irish whiskey. Since the today has come in vogue the business of the meeting is almost exclusively taken up with reports, which are of the most insubordinate character. Rivas has left town and gone to the Azul, to fight the Indians. We hear that he refused point blank to participate in the present invasion.

Several subscribers enquire of us what has become of our Absent friend and his amusing letters; we believe the gentleman in question is at present in Paris, but the stories circulated, about his arrest for forgery, we are happy to say, are great exaggerations: by some mischance he became acquainted with a document purporting to be a public security, which turned out to be forged. He was called upon to give evidence in the matter and nothing more. Much as we have to complain of Mr. Varela and his newspaper, we will not lend ourselves to the propagation of a rumour which is altogether destitute of authenticity. The letters, which our subscribers enquire about, don't come now, we suppose in consequence of the new French law which makes newspaper correspondents liable for the articles which appear in the papers to which they are attached.

The latest news from the Interior is of little importance, except that it is said the Chacho has fled to Bolivia with 5 followers.

Congress has passed a law admitting all articles required for the Boca railway, free of duty.

Three new market judges are about to be appointed, one for the Plaza 11 Setiembre, one for the South plaza, and one for the North plaza. If these judges understand a little English it would be so much the better, as the principal causes before them will be about wool and freights, &c. It is proposed that their jurisdiction shall extend to 20000 dols m/c, but we hope good honest men will be appointed, as otherwise they will do more harm than good.

Great discussion is going on now in Congress, about the national debts, and all schemes and projects are brought forward. We think that Foster's idea is a good one: call a meeting of creditors at Pavon, and let the whole amount of the claims be then and there inspected and taken down.

A new road from Cordova to Rioja is also talked of, but we believe the Financial Minister thinks that it is absurd to talk of so many roads at once, and wants to know where is the money to come from.

If laws and decrees would redeem paper money, we should long since have settled the currency question. A new law is passed now, ordering the Corrientes paper money to be redeemed at a certain figure. We suppose the President will send a troop of soldiers up the river to see that the law be carried into effect.

The Pampero question is beginning to be regarded as a rather serious matter: our colleagues try to make it appear as nothing, but Mr. Rich. Hughes has got them all into a corner, out of which they cannot get without fighting the Orientals, or giving the most ample satisfaction and explanations. Sor. Lamas will have another chance at Minister Elizalde, who is no match whatever for the Oriental representative.

CRIMINAL LENITY.

Philanthropy is all very well when applied to proper subjects, but unhappily in Buenos Ayres we see camp rangers and assassins get the benefit of this sentimental and ill-placed virtue. It may be safely computed that, of every 100 murders committed in the camp, in 10 cases the criminal is arrested, and of this last number one forfeits his life, the rest either escaping from custody, being acquitted on imperfect evidence, or having their punishment commuted to military or penal servitude.

The case of the Italian who stabbed the German, in Calle Suipacha, was one of the most dastardly and cold-blooded outrages ever recorded, yet we are assured, by a member of the foreign consular body, that the ruffian has not been sent to prison, the Chief of Police preferring, from a delicate sense of forgiveness, to keep him in civil detention, as if he had merely transgressed a municipal order. We demand that this culprit be at once lodged in the gloomiest dungeon of the Carcel, until a stern tribunal sends him to expiate his crime on the gallows.

The scandalous double murder of Kirby and Devero, has caused a profound sensation among all classes of foreigners. Through the efforts of the Irish farmers of Mercedes, the murderous gaucho was arrested, but he has not yet been brought to town, and the native papers studiously avoid mentioning a word about this terrible tragedy. Instead of stimulating public justice, or aiding in the fulfilment of the laws, our colleagues throw a cloak over the blackest enormities, and render themselves accountable, before God and man, for a grave dereliction of duty. Let not our readers be surprised if the Italian ultimately get off scot free, and the trial of Kirby's assassin drag its weary length along, until a change of Government, prison outbreak, or such legal quibbles as saved Coriolano Marquez, come to rescue him from that ignominious death which he has already twice merited. We manage these things much better in England.

EXTRAORDINARY SCENE AT THE POLICIA.

Last Sunday, about twelve o'clock, there was an unusual stir about the Policia. A crowd of boys, deputies, and fashionably dressed ladies assembled in the Plaza, and kept staring at the sentry on guard. Nobody could tell what the hubbub was about, save an old woman who, like Sam Weller, appeared anything but communicative. It was rumoured that some strangely dressed characters were seen entering the Policia with a man in military costume at their head. A murmur of indignation ran through the crowd at the late indiscretions of our Minister of Foreign Affairs. Suddenly out came about a dozen of nicely dressed young men, with hatchets under their belts. As a matter of course, they were all a gang of Flores' filibusters, who had been caught on the Mole-head by the Chief of Police. The crowd was disturbed from its revery by a most extraordinary commotion going on in the Policia yard. Some thought it was an Armstrong gun that the policemen were trying to wheel out. The large heavy doors had to be pulled open, the sentry pushed into the crowd at last the Policia megatherium made its appearance, and, dictu mirabile! it was a fire-engine, the nicely dressed young men were firemen, and before people had time to look at the engine, off it went, with the firemen pulling al pecho. As a matter of course, the boys and the deputies ran with the machine to extinguish the fire, the locality of which nobody knew anything about. After running for some squares in the direction of the Gas-house, it was discovered that there was no fire at all, and that the Brigade only went to the Retiro to practice.

IMPORTANT NEWS.

It may be remembered that last May some of the foreign Ministers had an interview with Sor. Elizalde respecting the Flores invasion. The treatment which they received, and the remarks of the native press, are still fresh in the memory of us all.

By last packet we learn that both the English and French Governments have warmly approved of the conduct of their Ministers, and it is the decided resolution of the foreign powers to discountenance all revolutions in these countries.

It behoves the Argentine Government to be a little more circumspect hereforward, unless Dr. Elizalde wishes to plunge us into rather serious compromises. Yesterday it was openly stated that the representatives of England and France were about to demand of President Mitre the withdrawal of his war vessels from the Uruguay. After the statement of Mr. Hughes respecting the Pampero, we should not be at all surprised at it. If the commander of that steamer cannot clear himself of the charge, President Mitre should most assuredly punish him. We want peace, Heaven knows; but with the revolutionists all around us, and indiscreet commanders in our war vessels, it is more than probable that if the Flores affair lasts much longer, we are in for a regular fandango.

ANOTHER REVOLUTION.

Yesterday town was rife with all sorts of rumours from Montevideo. Some 70 political refugees were said to have arrived, about 160 more escaped to the pontoons in the harbour.

On inquiring into the circumstances from a trustworthy person, we were informed that the Montevidean Government had discovered a wide-spread conspiracy, which was to begin active operations on the 24th inst., by seizing the President and other public functionaries, and proclaiming Flores President of the Republic. We are told that the porter of President Berro's house had been bought over, and that everything was ready for a general break out, when the Government got wind of the matter. To avoid bloodshed, means were allowed for the escape of all who were implicated in the conspiracy, and only a few were arrested.

It is utterly false the assertion that Flores has defeated Medina. On the contrary, he took good care not to encounter him. Flores is within about 20 leagues of Montevideo, and the Government troops are running about everywhere to try and catch him. How long, may we ask, will this game be allowed to go on!

THE GLEE CLUB.

To the Editors of the Standard.

Gentlemen—I have been somewhat surprised, in perusing the account of the general meeting of the subscribers to the British Library in to-day's 'Standard,' at certain remarks made with respect to the Glee Club during the discussion which followed the reading of the report of the committee, which appear to me to be calculated to lead your readers into forming erroneous conclusions, especially as, while reporting in full the attack on the Glee Club, you merely allude to a defender, and indeed leave us in doubt as to whether the defence was not confined to the British Hospital. With a view of setting the matter in a clear light, I beg to make a few observations.

Upon the application of the committee of the British Library to that of the Glee Club, that these should give a public concert for the benefit of the former, a special meeting was held to take into consideration the answer to be returned. A majority of our members decided upon a refusal on the following grounds: our disinclination to sing before a paying audience, knowing our own weakness better perhaps than those whose zeal for the interests of the society would lead them, we feared, to place too high a value upon our services, and a consequent unwillingness to subject ourselves to the impartial criticism of our disappointed hearers; and, our impression that the necessity of the British Library was hardly of a nature to render it a duty on our part to make any sacrifice of our personal feelings in the matter. At the same time, to show that we entertained a cordial sense of amity towards this institution we offered, as on a previous occasion, which seems to have escaped the recollection of the subscribers, to give any assistance in our power towards popularising the Library in the manner alluded to by the Chairman at the late meeting.

I am sorry to see that umbrage was taken at our singing in aid of the funds of the British Hospital, after declining to do so for the British Library, and that our conduct should be classified by any one as 'ungenerous and selfish policy,' but can by no means agree to the parallel drawn as to the utility and importance of the two institutions.

In conclusion I would deprecate the frequent mention of the Glee Club and its movements which occurs in your columns. We do not aim at publicity; purely selfish in our views, our only wish is for own enjoyment, and perhaps from time to time to invite our personal friends to judge of our progress. Beyond this we have no ambition, and indeed we had hoped that, as our decision was publicly announced in the 'Standard,' we should be allowed to rest in peace, but as you have resuscitated us we fear for the future.

I remain, Gentlemen,

Yours, &c.,

A MEMBER OF THE GLEE CLUB.

ON THE PROSPECTS OF COTTON CULTIVATION IN THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

By Thomas J. Hutchinson, F.R.G.S. &c., H.B.M.'s Consul at Rosario.

But no matter how low the price of cotton in Cordoba, the freight from thence to Rosario at three cents per arroba, or eighteen shillings for a bale of 400 lbs., would be out of the question. So, now, particularly when it is borne in mind that the journey of a troupe of carretas from one place to the other—only a distance of 240 to 260 miles—may occupy from three weeks to three months.

Nevertheless, if gratified we much to perceive the keen interest manifested by Governor Posse on the cotton question. He informed me that he had devoted this year a premium of 500 dollars for any individual producing more than 100 arrobas of cotton. He likewise regretted that I would send him so much cotton seed as I could. I expressed my satisfaction at hearing of such a step in the right direction, at the same time deeming it no harm to inform His Excellency that the Governor of Queensland, a British colony, had offered a bonus of ten acres (about two and a half cuadras square of Argentine measurement), for every bale of cotton weighing 300 lbs.

The Santa Fé there appears as yet little interest in the cotton cultivation. A small garden, belonging to Señor Don Domitilo Crespo, at the capital, contains a few plants. The staple cotton raised in this province in former years was considered of such a superior quality that the Paraguayans were in the habit of sending down the river, more than a hundred miles from the capital, for the cotton grown at Coronda, in order to make the finest kinds of Paraguayan lace therewith.

Through the kindness of Messrs. Mulhall, proprietors and editors of the Buenos Ayres English newspaper, the 'Standard,' who have been during the past year and more still the most energetic workers in the cause which could supplied by them through the province of Buenos Ayres, Entre Rios, and Corrientes, is likely to be favourable of good results at the end of the year. On his colonists, between Bird and Cazeaux, Entre Rios, the province of Corrientes, Señor Xicluna has nearly leagues of cotton during very well, and hopes to have the produce of several thousand plants to send to England before long.

I have been informed of cotton cultivated in considerable quantities in the province of Salta (which I have not visited), at a place called Campo Santo about six leagues from the capital. But even what will cotton grown there, as it has been reported to me to exist on the road from Chanar Muyo, on the Paraguay River to Oran, on the Rio Bermejo, the quantity could not be sufficient to pay for the necessary expenses of its gathering, cleaning, packing, and conveying down the river in the present state of navigation by land or water in this country. Here I may state that, from all the enquiries, as well as observation I have made on the subject, I have no faith in any species of wild cotton growing in South America, except the Gossypium Arboreum, said to exist in large quantities in Santa Fé, Jujuy, as well as in the Province of Bolivia. This can be of little use to, a manufacturing material, being only a silky down, having no fibre.

Although Paraguay be outside the Argentine Republic, still as being connected with it by the same river, I may mention that some hundreds of thousands of cotton plants are said to be in process of cultivation there, which were owned pursuant to an offer made by the President Lopez. As any information on the subject is only derived from newspapers, I can make no estimate of what the amount may be.

The governors, of all the provinces which I passed through, expressed to me their opinions of the great benefiting about being an indispensable preliminary to the successful cultivation of cotton out here. It is not my duty nor inclination to say anything about the policy or advisable any system of immigration, be it of colonization companies or other wise, of the Argentine Republic. At the same time I may be allowed to record the opinions of the governing powers, as those, of men qualified to form a correct judgment in reference to the prospects of any part of the world as a cotton field.

All of them agreed with a degree of pride in the success of the Argentine colony, in the province of Santa Fé, and set it forth as the best sort of machinery, literally what to make cotton goods, of an established rate. This colony composed of French, Germans, Swiss, and Belgians has realised in a few years a position of thriving comfort and independence, making one of the most important features of progress that has ever dawned on this part of the world; for it is the opinion of many thinking people that the future wealth and prosperity of the Argentine countries will depend more on their cotton, corn, and wool, than on their copper mines of Catamarca, or their silver of San Luan.

THE SIGLO.

We regret sincerely to notice the sudden suspension of this Montevideo contemporary. As an interesting journal, a well-edited paper, and a discreet politician, we must say that it stood high on our list. Although differing with it upon the Flour question, we must say that it never passed the bounds of editorial politeness. President Berro has a perfect right, and by his oath is bound, to take every just measure to suppress the revolution, but we question the discretion of meddling with so desperate an opponent as the Siglo.

Flores has caused his country many woes. None greater, however, than the suppression of so discreet and independent an organ as the Siglo.

ON CHANGE.

August 24.

Ounces opened at a quarter to twelve at 436, at twelve they fell to 435 1/2, at half-past twelve they were sold as low as 434 1/2. A certain well-known broker having begun to buy, ounces commenced at this hour going up, and closed firm at 436.

Owing to the news from Montevideo this morning, and the present complicated aspect of affairs, time bullets of long dates could not be effected, the buyers thinking the prices too high, and the bulls not half high enough.

It was said that many brokers were actually supporting the market, in order to effect sales for the end of the year; but it such was their object they were disappointed, as nothing supposed cause of the firmness of the gross market, was the great scarcity of gold said to be for; on Saturday night people were busy selling and seven o'clock for ounces, which could have been delivered four hours previously. We will not take it upon ourselves to say that ounces are abundant or not; but of one thing there cannot be the slightest doubt, and that is, that people were kept waiting nothing for the whole evening. The Money brought in this morning seven boxes of eggs, not ounces, as was expected.

Exchange for the packet is unprecedently dull. We are told that £200,000 has been passed up to this evening. The only people who are anxious on the subject are and from the present dull state of the market, we do not apprehend any animated demand for bills before October.

The Banco Nacional, was talked of on 'Change to day. It appears that the National Government is sending up the engineers, &c. It is to be regretted that a government which is devoting so much attention to the development of our industrial resources, would allow itself to be entangled in the meshes of a scandalous revolution.
